Master Gardeners receive 4.5 approved hours for continuing education!

Plan to sit back and enjoy breath-taking presentations of just a few of Indiana's beautiful public gardens. Plus learn landscaping tips and ideas from a prominent Wabash Valley landscaper to make your own gardens just as beautiful.

Featured speakers include Sonya Nash, who will be showing spectacular pictures of the famous Amish Quilt Gardens tour of Elkhart County. Each garden is designed around an Amish quilt pattern by using annuals and herbs. Sonya will show how you can create your own quilt garden.

Join Chad Franer as he introduces you to the Oldfields' estate grounds and gardens of the Indianapolis Museum of Art. These gardens were designed by the famous design firm that created New York City's Central Park. Chad will be sure to point out the 58 red oak trees, rose-draped arbors, cascading stream, and more than 19,000 bulbs planted in the many gardens.

Indiana University's Hilltop Garden and Nature Center has a number of gardens that are carved out of its five-acre plot along with two greenhouses. Greg Speichert, director, will guide you through these magical gardens such as the Woodland Garden, Children's Garden, Butterfly Ranch and the Ferguson Memorial Herb Garden.

The Indianapolis White River Gardens will be presented to you by Judy Gagen. Judy will take you through these well-manicured formal gardens that are known for their hardscapes and statuary as well as the flower designs. They contain over 100 plant varieties plus special exhibits that will be inspiration to take home for your own garden.

And to wrap it all up and help bring reality to your own garden will be Dallas Foster of Landscapes by Dallas Foster, Inc. Dallas has a unique style that reflects and re-creates nature within his designs, whether it be formal or natural. He will be able to provide you information, ideas, and tips to help you create your own beautiful gardens.
